Deep Stirrings

THE POLITICS OF CANADA, stabilized nationally by two elections within a year, are beginning to stir far beyond the rim of Parliament Hill. They are stirring in the provincial grass roots from Quebec to British Columbia. Theresults will be felt in national affairs later on.

For the first time in recent years Liberal Party is preparing seriously to challenge the ancient regime of Mr. Maurice Duplessis in Quebec and the Union Nationale which was the decisive ally of the Diefenbaker Government in the last national election.

For this attempt to recover French Canada after the defeat of March 31, the Liberal Party apparently intends to release Mr. Jean Lesage from Parliament, where he can ill be spared.

Mr. Lesage is seeking the provincial party leadership in Quebec where there has been no strong Liberal leader in many years. A brilliant member of the St. Laurent Government and a young man, Mr. Lesage should offer strong opposition to Mr. Duplessis, but his task is formidable.

The virtual dictator of Quebec's business will not be easily disturbed, especially when he is bound to have, in recompense for his assistance in the last federal election, the support of the powerful Diefenbaker Government. Nevertheless, Mr. Lesage evidently is preparing to commit his career to this purpose.

In Ontario the Liberal Party, long disorganized and ineffective, has recently completed a drastic housecleaning and made a new start. Determined to present a new face to the electors, it has rejected Mr. Walter Harris, only because that able man was associated with two national defeats, and has chosen as its leader Mr. J. J. Wintermeyer, young man who has distinguished himself in the Legislature as chief critic of the Frost Government.

At the same time the long feud between the provincial and national Liberal Parties in Ontario, which began in the days of the late Mitchell Hepburn, has been ended. A strong opposition to Mr. Frost at last is emerging.

In Manitoba an opposite movement seems to be under way. The aged Liberal Government of Mr. Douglas Campbell must go to the polls during the next few weeks and its survival would be little short of a That the Conservative Party under Mr. Duff Roblin will capture Manitoba after more than three decades of Progressive and Liberal administration is to be expected. For the first time in many years the Conservative Party probably/will form a government west of the Lakes.

The situation is more stable but berta where it will be interesting to see, a year or two from now, whether the C.C.F. and Social Credit defeats in national politics have undermined the Douglas and Manning Governments.

In British Columbia we are witnessing the first bubbles of a deep ferment. The Bennett Government is in grave trouble for familiar reasons and may well be on the way out.

In that hope, and filled with the steam of its federal-victory, the Conservative Party is moving now to capture office for the first time since its provincial defeat in 1933. But it is still a long way from that objective, has no members in the Legislature and does not seem entirely satisfied with its leadership.

There will be much talk, doubt, about the replacement of Finlayson between now and the party's September convention and some discontent was expressed at the preparatory conference here last week. A party leader, however, is not easily dislodged. Mr. Finlayson clearly indicates that he will fight, if neccessary, for his position and there is no visible alternative.

The world's champion optimist may be defined as a British Columbia Conservative who expects Mr. Davie Fulton to leave the Justice portfolio, and the probable successorship to Mr. Diefenbaker and come to British Columbia as provincial

If Mr. Finlayson is secure, as he seems to be, there is no recognizable party policy, as some delegates to the Victoria conference complained. Everyone will hope that such a policy can be crystallized in September and also that provincial Conservatism can offer something much more effective than a pale image of the national Gevernment. The provincial Liberal Party is in the same sort of dilemma. It needs new leadership and policy quite as badly as the Conservatives. It, planning a convention However these things may turn out in all the provinces, it is evident that the national party leaders are both vitally interested, provincial organizations with his prestige and the sinews of war,

Mr. Pearson must realize that the reconstruction of the shattered Liberal Party must begin at the grass roots and cannot be arranged by any sudden strokes of strategy in

First Aisle on the Right

N writing the other day about the tics of Highland Games as played on the theatre I had no thought of implying that a consideration of correct man in any way covered the question. There is a whole system of conduct in regard to attendance at the theatre which does not, strictly speaking, come within the definition of tiquette at all. rather, a code of conduct; perhaps even a way of life, which might more properly which be termed theatremanship-that is, the art of attending the theatre in a crowd and still managing to see what goes on. It is closely akin to Mr. Stephen Potter's justly famous Gamesmanship, which famous concerns the art of winning without actually cheating.

In a recent interview the currently popular actor, Peter Ustinov, gave a good example of the sort of thing I have in mind. In discussing cricket, he pointed out that this is played with a hard ball and no protective glove and the strong likelihood that any one catching a long hit is going to feel it. him, said Mr. Ustinov, the art of catching a cricket ball lies in failing gloriously—in giving every appearance of trying desperately to catch it, until the last possible instant. There are likewise various ways of carrying on the game of theatre attendance so as to obtain the maximum of enjoyment with the minimum of pain.

But there are also undrawn but nevertheless strict lines of conduct which place certain behaviour out of bounds.

Not Cricket

The gentleman, for instance, who regularly bought the seat in front of his own chosen seat and kept it vacant, in order that he would have an unobstructed view of the stage, was overstepping the bounds of theatremanship.

The proper procedure would be to ourchase seats in tandem for himself and his wife, and then persuade the good lady that it was a particular mark favor and affection for her to be offered the one in front.

In this way he would ensure that no bulky object—his wife being a modest five foot two and invariably hatlesswould intervene between him and the The enthusiasm for this arrangestage. ment which he could engender wife would be the measure of his skill at theafremanship.

Your true theatreman will seldom be theory and practice of etiquette in the Road to the Aisles. He sits serenely at peace, knowing that when he eventually chooses to leave, half a row of patrons will bob up willy nilly to bid him goodbye.

One of the hazards of theatre-going is the constant threat of banging some neighbor in the dark and thereby inviting a verbal attack. The accomplished theatreman has several methods of avoiding the worst of such vocal retaliation.

Suppose, for instance, he inadvertently jabs some strange woman in the back as she sits innocently in front of him. Quick as a flash he will turn and lean the back of his own seat, engaging the person behind him in urgent The injured lady, turning to give him

She therefore resumes her position theatreman, his conspiracy in restraint of tirade a proven success, can safely turn his face towards the stage.

Invasion Tactics

A late-arriving theatreman may some times be confronted with a situation in which only an aisle seat remains in the row he wishes to occupy.

This will never do. Without hesita-tion he starts in along the darkened row, reaching the centre seat only to find it, to his simulated surprise, already filled.

Muttering apologies for his error, he hesitates and fumbles a bit, and if his timing is right and he enjoys a bit of luck, the row of people may be moved to rise, shift one seat aisle-ward, and enable him to sit down in the centre.

The alacrity with which this accommodation may be extended will depend in part on the row's desire not to miss any more of the stage action while the theatreman stumbles out, partly on the psychological pressure of the hisses and mutterings which may be produced by in seats farther back whose view is being obstructed, and partly by the number of crushed toes which the theatreman has thoughtfully left in his wake as he struggied to the desired seat. Most watchers would gladly move over one seat rather than endure a repetition of his passage.

As Our Readers See It

If A. J. Broome had read my "numeris" letters to the Times, as he claims to have done in his letter of April 25, he would have known that as a member of the Socialist Party of Canada, I am "for Socialism."

He would also have known that I have never referred to the "working classes" (can Mr. Broome tell me how many there are?), or implied that I have "no time" for the workers or that they are ignorant. They happen to be the brains of the earth. They have to be, in order to produce the wealth of the earth. But they produce it for another class. This doesn't necessitate a working knowledge of the history, economics and politics of capitalism though. But solving their social problems will, and that's what they need now.

Give Him a Chance

Having noticed recently a suggestion that Deane Finlayson be dropped as leader of the Tory Party in B.C. and that one of recentlyfederal candidates would be a logical choice, might I suggest that great consideration must be given to the question of a B.C. leader of the party.

Before that is even thought of, all Tories in B.C. must look back over the years and ask themselves first, was there actually a Tory Party in B.C. or was it just in name, with Deane Finlay-son as a leader of a party that barely existed. I ask all Tories in BC, when-they knew they had a leader why didthey not support him?

No leader can carry on a party by name, it must be backed with supporters. For this reason I suggest, is it fair now to criticize Deane Finlayson as a leader of a party in name only, especially when those who were supposed to be Tories did not rally to the cause and support their leader. Deane Finlayson has been in the position of trying to lead a horse to water, but he couldn't make him drink. I suggest that with the party now re-established by Premier Diefenbaker, that Deane Finlayson be given a chance fo carry on, and in just the same way as the people of Canada gave Premier Diefenbaker a chance again to prove his party could, with great dignity carry out the people's wish for him to govern Canada for another four years.

One-Man Dance?

Re sending the totem pole to England as a centennial gift. I note that a private donor is giving $1,000 in order that Mungo Martin can go with it to inaugurate the ceremony of putting it up in true Indian style. That, I think, is an excellent idea and quite as it should be.

I understand that a war dance is part of the ceremony. If that is so how can Mungo Martin do the dance by himself? should have thought more than one ndian would be necessary. I am sure that Mungo Martin and a band of Indians would get a good welcome.

I am a gulible and confused visitor from Saskatchewan. My neighbor on the adjacent farm is an Irishman. He told me that British Columbia was having a great celebration this year to mark the wiping out of the provincial debt and also the repeal of all taxation laws. seemed like the place for me and here

This Irishman has led me up the garden path. I found that the celebra-tion was to mark the foundation of the olony which preceded this province, shortly found out that his tale about repeal of taxes was a fairy one. that out here new gimmicks had been developed in this field.

On arrival I started to look for the heapest place to park. All sites where one can park for nothing were gone. The locals leave their cars there at night to be sure that they have parking in the morning. I finally decided to park on the street behind the Empress Hotel where the meters say you can stay two hours for two nickels. They call this the parking place of the Scots.

I got my ancient Ford into place, put in a nickel and after a great burring the marker registered 60 minutes. I put in another nickel and after a long wait it registered twenty minutes. I followed up with three coppers and finally made the two hours. Cost 13 cents.

However it was 87 cents cheaper than dollar fine. This meter is No. 6 on the hotel side, down Douglas from Humboldt, Later I had to park between Government and Wharf Streets on Yates in front of the Victoria Box place.

Dous debate about our future course in the Middle East is now going on among the American policymakers. It may seem rather remote, but in reality it is about as remote as a time-bomb under the bed. So the issues are examining. Two main issues are being debated. The first is whether to encourage Ca-mille Chaumoun in his intention to seek amendment of the Lebanese constitution, so that he can secure another term as President of the Lebanon. The second issue is how far to go on the Alsop new state department line of making friends again with Egypt's Gamal Abdul

BEHIND the scenes, an intensely seri- moun if the Lebanese constitution is not successfully amended, and Chaus therefore fails to secure another term. Every other pro-Western leader in the whole area will thereupon begin asking himself when his turn will come to be erted in the same manner

> Worse still, the replacement of Chaumoun by a more neutral and therefore less controversial candidate can lead on quite directly to a new challenge to King Hussein in Jordan.

Jordan's beleaguered pro-Westerners watched with horrified attention while Nasser's furious attack forced King Hussein's "elder brother," King Saud of Saudi Arabia, to hand over most of his authority to Saudi Arabia's crown Prince Faisal.

The pattern of defeat for a stout friend of the West, and his replacement by a neutral, was clearly set in the Saudi Arabian crisis. Let the same pattern be repeated in the Lebanon. Then the time will be ripe in Jordan for Hussein to fall victim to Nasser's pressure. After that it will be about time to give up the life-and-death game for the Middle East.

Such are the stakes in the present ehind-the-scene debate in Washington. Unfortunately, a good many officials of the Dulles state department do not consider the stakes being played for. They only consider the ease of play.

Obviously, it is much easier and pleasanter to have outwardly amiable relations with such a formidable figure as Gamal Abdul Nasser. Obviolisly, it will be much easier and pleasanter if there is no violent crisis in Lebanon and there will surely be a very violent crisis, if Camille Chaumoun adheres to his intention to seek another 'term as

But avoiding unpleasantness is not policy making. There are, indeed, only two possible Middle Eastern policies now open to the American government. Either we stick by the West's Middle Eastern friends, treat their enemies as

EYES ON NON-WINNERS

And yet, whenever you watch a swim meet—or whenever I watch one it's important not to give undivided attention to the winners. It's just as important, in a broader sense, to notice how many of the performers are competent in the water.

Down at the Y we like to make champions Any outfit that develops competitive teams feels the same way. Only the title-holders never are the bulk of the competing membership. Only one wins an event. The others also take part.

That was the idea old Pierre de Coubertin had in mmd when he enunciated the prin-ciple of the Olympic Games.

In a meet like tomorrow's the point has added significance. It's not just a matter of trying and competing well. It's a matter of showing the public just how many of our young people have attained a measure of safety in the water that should be an essential in a seacoast town.

I guess the percentage of swimmers among kids today is higher here than ever before in spite of the fact that you have

SAFETY FACTOR

It says something for the quality of the community that so many opportunities are opened to the small fry to learn enough to handle themselves in the water. We like our kids and we want them to have a chance if they fall in over their heads or tip out of a boat.

We want them to enjoy the fun - and

there's none healthier of swimming.

We want them, also, to learn how to be competitors. That can help to develop character—though anyone who says any branch of athletics is a sure cure for delinquency is too optimistic.

And we want them to aspire to stardom, not so much for the honor and glory which they want, but in the hope that they'll learn how to discipline themselves in their progress toward that goal.

Those two young people, the Konrads in Australia sort of point the way. Among other things, they've emphasized the fact that it's never too young to hit the top in

That is being proved on a minor scale here. The fastest times are not all reserved for the seniors. A lot of the younger performers are coming through with better showings than ex-stars still in their teens.

NEW YORK - Are the Russians losing their propaganda initiative? Is this likely to be more than a short-term setback? This is a question being asked around the United Nations following the propaganda defeat suf-fered by the Russians in the Security Council when they protested flights of American nuclear bombers.

It's being asked as a result of the growing con-viction that the Russians are no longer anxious to hold a summit conference.

The Russians, having pulled the West to within Burke sight of the summit, how seem to be dragging their ice axes. One theory is that the Rus-Burke sians feel they have wrung maximum propa-ganda value out of the summit idea without having to give anything away. Now, if they actually hold the meeting, they may have to give way on real issues.

But there is evidence of growing suspicion of the Russians' intentions. As one UN diplomat commented, "The Russians want reduced tensions and they had hoped they could achieve this by vague promises of the sort they made at the last summit conference. They don't want to talk about specific things like Germany and Eastern Europe, However, the Western nations are being chary this time about vague promises. It has taken a long time but gradually the rest of the world is beginning to smarten up about Russian promises.'

was significant, that at the press con ference given by Russian Ambassador Ark-ady Sobolev, following his gambit in the Se-curity Council, one of the toughest questions was asked by an Indian correspondent. The Indian asked, in so many words, "Will this action you have taken enhance the possibility of a summit conference? If not how do you

If this is true, if the influence of the Big Two is waning, then both Canada and the United Nations stand to gain. # Chemical Fire Spray Backed

A recent experiment in dumping chemicals on a fire from the air at Elsie Lake, 20 miles northwest of Alberni, impressed a crowd of loggers and foresters sufficiently to have them plan discussions of full-time protection.

It consisted of spraying calcium sodium borate on a set fire, not to extinguish it, but to restrict its spread by covering the slash fuel on the ground with material that retards burning.

He and close to 150 B.C. Forest Service foresters, logging company officials, and B.C. Power Commission engineers and firefighters, watched the experiment on the shores of Epice Lake.

Dr. C. D. Orchard, deputy forests minister and chief for ester, said he was not impressed with the chemical, known as borate or "fire break." but urged its use until something better becomes available.

"Borate is too heavy, too messy, too gooey, and air application is primitive, but it's the sion at its Elsie Lake construction.

Probable Cause Told at Inquest

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP) —A coroner's jury was told Thursday that a shifting load and bad weather was the probable cause of the sinking of a steel barge near Quadra Island last month.

Four men were aboard the Daryle D when it sank about April 14. The body of Douglas Krog of Qualicum was recovered. The bodies of the other three—Roy Clark of Hilliers. Joe Hastings of Fanny Bay and Mah Wah of Nanaimo — have not been recovered.

Captain William Higgs, mas ter mariner and marine sur-veyor, told the inquest into Krog's death that a 17-ton logging arch on the barge appar ently shifted during a storm. Two steel plates from the hull were missing when the boat was CONCORD, Mass (UP)-Concord Prison Farm outfielder Ronald Mules broke with the crack of the bat, raced far back to the cheers of guards and spec-tators alike and grabbed the ball on the dead run. The guards suddenly stopped cheering. The spectators, all prison farm inmates, cheered on. Mules had run right out of the park and into the woods. Several guards stood dumfounded for several seconds Thursday before coming to a full realization of what had transpired. After quieting Mules' widely cheering rooting section, which included the slugger who had rapped the ball, four guards set out after

NEW YORK (NEA)-Sometimes no matter what they say about boxing you have to like it because it stands for se thing these kids making crime headlines in New York don't

Once a fighter gets his instructions from the referee and comes back to his corner and the trainer takes off his robe and the manager pulls on his right glove for luck and both duck through the ropes, nothing helps but guts.

Most people can fight when they're mad. That's an easy and natural thing to do. But boxers hardly know each other. They are there to take each other apart and all they have is nerusness and pain instead of helpful anger. It's easy to get rabbit-scared, yet fighters control fear and the good ones let it hop them up:

But the smart kid from the street who uses a knife or a gun and acts tough rarely will get into the ring, because he doesn't have the guts. You never see them in gym. So when you run across kids like this you can say, "Why you don't even have the moxie to fight." It is something to hold over them and expose them, which is why boxing sometimes can be a good thing no matter what they say about it.

It was like this with Danny, a kid who hung around the front of a soda fountain and had his hair cut long and talked

He was 18 and he wanted to be a fighter, and we took him over to Lou Stillman's gym. A guy who liked to back fighters came along.

Charley Goldman, the mild little derby wearing gnome who brought out the best in Rocky Marciano, said he'd look Danny The kid went into the dressing room and put on a T-shirt and trunks.

It was during Stillman's evening session and Charles was not busy with Rory Calhoun, the middleweight. He took Danny upstairs and had him work on the big bag.

Punching bags don't fight back, so Danny looked terrific. He moved, feinted, jabbed, hooked, banged a straight right hand. He had his feet planted smartly for a kid who never had a

With that, the guy who had come to watch Danny went downstairs and gave Lou Stillman gym dues for a month and then bought Danny a mouthpiece, robe, hand bandages.

"I am," he boomed to Stillman, "in business with this kid."

After the workout, the guy took Danny out for a cup of tea. and then drove him home in a cab and talked about getting a lot of rest and eating correctly.

The next night Danny showed up with the guy and Gold-man put gloves and a head protector on the kid and put him

"Just box easy," Charley said to Danny. "The other fella "Just box easy," Charley said to Danny. "The other fella is 15 pounds lighter than you. I just want you to jab and move, but throw them jabs all the time."

The automatic bell rang and Danny moved three steps and stopped. He stopped just like any other street fighter who swaggers into Stillman's and then wants to run out when some body pops him with a left jab you don't find on the streets.

* */ For two agonizing rounds Danny wouldn't throw a punch.
"What's the matter?" the guy who was backing him asked.
Goldman took off his glasses and wiped them with one corner of the green sweater he was wearing. "There's something the matter with this kid," he said.

'I don't think he likes to fight, you know what I mean? It's like he has no guts." We sent Danny home that night and never heard of him

NEW MONSTER?

Serpently, It's Quite Baffling

Dr. Clifford Carl today was baffled by the description of a "serpent of sorts" reported seen by three Port Alberni men while fishing at Qualicum Thursday.

George Shellafore, his father, Emade Shellafore, and Walter Johnson, said the creature was 75 feet long, with a square head nine feet long, pointed fangs, and shiny brown skin with darker spots.

"Wow!" said Dr. Carl. The three men said they were fishing in a dinghy about two miles off shore when they saw the beast, We got within 30 feet of it," said George Shallafore. "We watched for about eight minutes, keeping close by. Then it turned and came toward us with its mouth open. Its fangs were pointed."

At that point the men turned for shore at full throttle.

The description does not fit Cadborosaurus, Victoria's famous sea monster, "Caddy" is described as being from 25 to 35 feet in length with a long neck, head like a horse or camel, heavy body and with sparse, coarse hair.

Here More Than Eighty Years

Mrs. Annie Middleton, pioneer resident of Victoria for 83 years, celebrated her 85th birthday quietly at a luncheon on Thursday with her four daughters, Mrs. A. Coles (Elsie), Mrs. N. Coles (Mabel), Mrs. W. Smith (Grace) and Mrs. H. West (Verna). The table was centred with a bowl of pale yellow carnations, white narcissi and ferns. Mrs. A. Coles, at whose Davida Street home the luncheon was held, presented her mother with a corsage of yellow rosebuds. During the day Mrs. Middleton was the recipient of many good wishes and gifts. She was born in Stratford, Ont., and came to Victoria with her parents in 1875, travelling by wagon train across the United parents in 1875, travelling by wagon train across the United States to San Francisco and from their by boat to Victoria. Her father. Mr. Alexander Clyde, founded the First Baptist Church in this city in 1876. Mrs. Middleton has eight grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

U.S. SENATE HITS A CHORD FOR CULTURE

WASHINGTON (AP)-The United States Senate struck a blow for culture Thursday by voting to reduce the tariff on harpsichords and clavichords.

The bill was sent to President Eisenhower after the Senate was informed that the instruments are the historical forerunners of the piano. The commerce department said the leading United States producer turns out about a dozen custom - made harpsichords a year, and does not feel the need for unusual tariff protection.

The measure reduces the duty from 36 to 18 per cent, the same rate that now applies to pianos,

SOLID BLOW FOR KRAFT-On the third week of its "comeback" fight for ratings and prestige TV's oldest hour-long weekly drama. Kraft Theatre, proved that the story is still the keystone to successful theatre in a smash adaptation of Ernest Hemingway's prize ring yarn, "Fifty Grand."

For 60 throbbing minutes (less commercials) this was Kraft at its best, reminiscent of its peppery, succulent salad days of two and three years ago when week after week it came up with domestic dramas and comedies that held the crackle of life and the honest smell of raw garlic. Those were the days before the show settled for the humdrum, the cops and robbers drama, the action western, for the pattern that has $35.00 gobbled up most shows.

Made from good quality cedar Knocked down ready to assemble with ends sides and bottome bundled separately in Less than 20 lots, per flat 20 to 200 lots, per flat 200 sand aver, per flat 200 per flat 200 sand aver, per flat anyway to his youthful challenger he may as well make sure of his financial security in retirement by betting $50,-000 against himself, Ralph Meeker turned in a sterling performance, Mouse one of the best male performances of 1958.

Somehow he manifested perfectly a man who has had his brains scrambled just once too often. Although not yet on queer street his speech isn't quite clear nor are his rhoughts too coherent, yet, with the characteristic of the breed, he has his ideas and ideals to which he clings with grim determination.

"Why can't you watch Mickey Mouse Club like other little

Through this one fight he is determined to make Channel 2: Big Record repeat guests include Jimmie money so that his daughters will never want Rodgers and Dennis Day. for anything and, above all, that he will never again have to leave his wife, Janet Ward. By the same token he is determined to quit the ring as he feels dissatisfied that his profession is not one of which his family can be proud, even though he is champion of the world. Direction by Sidney Lumet was excellent. Right from the start he picked up the linament-laden, stale Maurice Chevaller, sweat atmosphere of the business and, through restraint and feeling retained a beautiful page throughout. And, in the adaptation by A. E. Hotchner, the characters spoke in the simple words that Hemingway uses so advantageously to divulge character.

In addition to Meeker, Ralph Dunn, as Danny Hogan, Fred J. Scollay, as Jerry Doyle, and Miss Ward as Ellie Brennan, gave solid supporting performances that turned "Fifty Grand" into another solid blow for the continuance next season of Kraft Theatre.

OWING TO THE maddening way the networks have of competing against a rival web it was impossible to review Garry Moore's All-Star Jazz show which was n at the same time as Kraft Theatre. But my musical friends tell me that it wasn't up to other recent jazz outings, that, in their opinion, it would have been better jazz if the non-jazz TV boys had kept their finger out of the pie and left it up to Louis Armstrong, Jack Teagarden and the rest just to stand up and give out with the blues, all hot and swampy like.

Juvenile Crime Shows Increase

Juvenile delinquency is inereasing in the Greater Victoria area this year, police officers reported to the managing board of the Coldharbor Road juvenile detention home Thursday.

But they agreed the nature of uvenile offences is less serious than in other years.

This was borne out by the re-port of Col. W. S. Dingley, oper-ator of the detention home. It reported a definite "downward trend" in admissions to the home where the more serious ases are detained.

The report noted that from Nov. 1, 1956, to April 30, 1957, there were 90 admissions of oungsters under 18 and 696 hours of night care expended. From Nov. 1, 1957, to April 30, 1958, there were 38 admissions and 186 hours of night care.
Figures to show that juvenile criminal offences are on the increase were quoted by Harry Adams, Saanich juvenile of ficer. He said Saanich juvenile court had 36 cases in 1955, 63 in 1956, 132 in 1957, and 68 already this He admitted, however, that the population of Saanich was increasing, and the nature of the offences was less serious.

Serpently, It's Quite Baffling

Provincial museum director er. Clifford Carl today was baffled by the description of a "serpent of sorts" reported seen by three Port Alberni men while fishing at Qualicum Thursday.

George Shellafore, his father, Emade Shellafore, and Walter Johnson, said the creature was 75 feet long, with a square head nine feet inted fangs, and shiny brown skin with darker spots.

"Wow!" said Dr. Carl. The three men said they were fishing in a dinghy about two miles off shore when they saw the beast.

"We got within 30 feet of said George Shallafore. 'We watched for about eight minutes, keeping close by. Then it turned and came toward us with its mouth open. Its fangs were pointed."
At that point the men turned for shore at full Scurrah said today. He confirmed that the sub-ject was broached "briefly" by aldermen at a one-hour closed meeting in city hall Thursday.

He said the meeting was held primarily to deal with the salary question for certain heads of departments as a preliminary to the estimates.

"The indeminity question also was raised but I'm quite sure that no alderman would even consider a raise if it will mean increasing the mill rate, he said.

Never Too Young To Be Champ

OUR crowd will be down at the Crystal Garden tomorrow evening, watching the Victoria Y kids swim against the Vancouver

We'll be seeing young Bob Wheaton, who made Canada's British Empire Games team. We'll have an eye open for the boys and girls who swept to victory in the recent Pacific Northwest YMCA meet in Vancouver. And we'll have a chance to look over a lot of other, younger performers who are on their ways up the competitive ladder.

In events like tomorrow's gala you're inclined to fix your attention on the best of the competitors. They're the kids thrashing down to the finish, often winning by a touch. Unless you're kin to them, the ones who come in fourth, fifth and sixth don't attract your attention.

EYES ON NON-WINNERS

And yet, whenever you watch a swim meet—or whenever I watch one—it's important not to give undivided attention to the winners. It's just as important, in a broader sense, to notice how many of the performers are competent in the water.

Down at the Y we like to make champions.

Any cutfit that develops competitive teams feels the same way. Only the title holders never are the bulk of the competing member-Only one wins an event. The others also take part.

That was the idea old Pierre de Coubertin had in mind when he enunciated the principle of the Olympic Games.

In a meet like tomorrow's the point has added significance. It's not just a matter of trying and competing well. It's a matter of showing the public just how many of our young people have attained a measure of safety in the water that should be an essential in a seacoast town.

I guess the percentage of swimmers among kids today is higher here than ever before in spite of the fact that you have to teach a great deal larger number of them just to keep pace with the population.

But the schools have entered the field The Y turns out hundreds in the course of a year. The VASC does a swell job with youngsters, and several campaigns at swimming holes all boost the total.

Our population won't become as amphibi-ous as frogs, but there are a great number of people here doing all they can to see that the kids are tadpoles.

SAFETY FACTOR

It says something for the quality of the community that so many opportunities are opened to the small fry to learn enough to handle themselves in the water. We like our kids and we want them to have a chance if they fall in over their heads or tip out

We want them to enjoy the fun - and

there's none healthier — of swimming.

We want them, also, to learn how to be competitors. That can help to develop character-though anyone who branch of athletics is a sure cure for delinquency is too optimistic.

And we want them to aspire to stardo not so much for the honor and glory which they want, but in the hope that they'd learn how to discipline themselves in their progress toward that goal.

the game.

That is being proved on a minor scale here. The fastest times are not all reserved for the seniors. A lot of the younger per-formers are coming through with better showings than ex stars still in their teens. Youth is being served, and youth is serv ing a very attractive program in aquatic events these days. We'll be down there watching tomorrow.

I'll be wondering, too, how long it will before an old process of education will reversed for swimmers, with mothers being taught by the children lisping at their

UN CORRESPONDENCE

By STANLEY BURKE

The Awakening

NEW YORK — Are the Russians losing their propaganda initiative? Is this likely to be more than a short-term setback?

This is a question being asked around the United Nations following the propaganda defeat suf-fered by the Russians in fered by the Russians in the Security Council when they protested flights of American nuclear bombers. It's being asked as a result of the growing con-viction that the Russians are no longer anxious to hold a summit conference.

The Russians, having pulled the West to within Burke sight of the summit, now seem to be dragging their ice axes. One theory is that the Russians feel they have wrung maximum propaganda value out of the summit idea without to give anything away. Now, if they actually hold the meeting, they may have to give way on real issues.

But there is evidence of growing suspicion of the Russians' intentions. As one UN diplomat commented, "The Russians want reduced tensions and they had hoped they could achieve this by vague promises of the sort they made at the last summit conference. They don't want to talk about specific things like Germany and Eastern Europe. ever, the Western nations are being chary this time about vague promises. It has taken a long time but gradually the rest of the world is beginning to smarten up about Rus-

It was significant, that at the press conference given by Russian Ambassador Ark-ady Sobolev, following his gambit in the Security Council, one of the toughest questions was asked by an Indian correspondent. The Indian asked, in so many words, "Will this action you have taken enhance the possibility of a summit conference? If not, how do you

A cross-check of Afro-Asian and Latin American delegations indicates some significant shifting of opinion. It's noted that the Americans seem now to be growing aware that, although the Russians talk a great deal about helping other countries, they are very reluctant to part with their rubles. Canada for example, contributes twice as much to UN Technical Assistance as the Russians do and such contributions as the Russians make have as many strings as a fish net.

Furthermore, the Russians have been on ccasion discovered dealing off the bottom of the trade deck, For example, there was their deal on rice. The Burmese were most grateful when the Russians bought up surplus rice-until the Russians sold it back on the Asian market at a bargain price.

It's also noted that the Russians, as they gain in strength, will gradually lose the sup port which always goes to the underdog. As they brandish their missiles and threaten to "bury" other nations, they look less and less appealing to the uncommitted nations.

There's a big difference, of course, be tween views expressed by politically sophisticated diplomats and correspondents at the United Nations and those held by the folks back home. The men at the UN say, however that gradually the facts are filtering down to their people. As an economist observed, "There's much less talk in Asia now of economic imperialism than there was even a year ago. They want development and they're inclined to take capital from whatever source they can-capitalistic capital or communistic capital." Delegates privately admit growing disillusionment with both the great powers. As Walter Lippmann commented this week, "As the new generation, the postwar generation comes forward and the angry old men of diplomacy subside, the relative importance of Moscow and Washington will decline . . ."

The influence of Moscow in Warsaw, in Belgrade, in Peiping, may rise or fall from time to time but its general trend is downward. There is no doubt. I think, that the decline of the importance of the United States is one of the great facts within the non-Communist world.

If this is true, if the influence of the Big wo is waning, then both Canada and the United Nations stand to gain. Canada stands to gain because obviously she'll be less over-whelmed by her great neighbor. The United Nations stands to gain because the great powers, inevitably, tend to bypass the UN.

to have them plan discussions of full-time protection.

It consisted of spraying calcium sodium borate on a set fire, not to extinguish it, but to restrict its spread by covering the slash fuel on the ground with material that retards burning.

Dr. C. D. Orchard, deputy forests minister and chief forester, said he was not impressed by maching the chemical, snown as borate or "fire break," but urged its use until something better becomes available.

NEW YORK (AP)-An in DEATHS OF 2 LOGGERS lost a wheel before its takeoff MISHAPS, JURIES SAY

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP)-Coroner's juries have re turned verdicts of accidental death in two separate fatalities at logging camps,

A jury ruled that Benjamin Shramm, 25, of Chilliwack died by drowning last week. Testimony was that he fell, into about 25 feet of water while splicing lines around a log boom at nearby Sonora Island for the Sonora Timber Company. There were no witnesses and a diver had to be brought in to recover the body.

Death of Walter Dwinski of Vancouver, killed last Saturday at the Imperial Logging Company operation in Port Neville, was attributed to a fracture and dislocation of the neck. He had been hit by a snapping line after he ignored warnings and stood in the way
